

Information Management Solutions

Integrated and Flexible Enterprise Solutions Designed to Maximize the Value of Your IT Investments

The amount of data generated by your healthcare organization's IT devices and systems will grow more than 100x in the next decade. With continued investments in new or changing technology, the resulting data growth can cause your organization to become "data rich, information poor," impacting clinical care and operations.

When data can be analyzed and understood, the resulting information becomes a transformative tool to reinvent, digitize, or streamline business by providing greater visibility into an enterprise, allowing healthcare providers to improve delivery of care and achieve optimization, and ultimately, competitive advantage.

That's why we developed Information Management Solutions

Our solutions address business challenges by transforming data into actionable information that supports your unique business objectives. More than 145 Information Management clients have recognized real business value, including:

Revenue Generation

Risk Reduction

Operational Efficiencies

Competitive Advantage

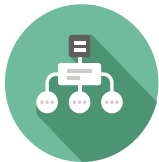

Safety Improvements

Information Security

CTG's Solutions

Our Information Management Solutions include a portfolio of services that allow your organization to use data to drive toward business answers, manage data in a manner that directly relates to objectives, and analyze and visualize information to enable the highest possible work process efficiencies.

Business Process

Drives productivity from data and process alignment

CTG's experts assess existing processes, resources, and tools to help you understand how information is consumed. This provides insight into the current environment and offers improvement and remediation recommendations that support cost reduction and efficiencies, including streamlined billing/collection processes, reduced payer denials, and minimized A/R issues.

Data Management

Ensures one version of truth across the enterprise

Document control, standardization, and normalization enable improved data management. Data indexing, warehousing, lakes, and integration result in a structured view of data. Governance ensures you know where your data resides, who owns it, and that it is properly organized—and secured—for use, which is vital for patient health information.

Analytics and Visualization

Gain intelligence from measures, metrics, and performance

Analytics and visualization present data patterns in a meaningful, usable way, enhancing outcomes and controlling costs. Business intelligence reporting, dashboard modeling, and 3D visualization enable you to leverage data in ways that improve business, such as population health management, physician profiling, and comparative analysis initiatives.

HOW WOULD YOUR BUSINESS CHANGE IF YOU COULD:

- Extract value from data by transforming it into actionable information specific to your business needs?
- Utilize your data to enable efficient responses, increase team productivity, improve decision-making, positively impact profitability, and identify risks before they become issues?
- Have clear insight into the business objectives served by the information you own, who is impacted by it, and how they use it?
- Easily analyze and visualize your information in a way that supports business transformation?

IN THEIR WORDS...

"Organizations succeed with analytics only when good data and insightful models are put to regular and productive use by business people in their decisions and work. We don't declare victory when a great model or application is developed—only when it's being used to improve business performance and create new value."

— Financial Operations Manager
